

Football - Not Just a Game?

Serious injuries to professional footballers have been widely reported in the media over the past weeks.

Footballers owe a duty of care to other players and claims can be brought against them if they cause an injury through a negligent or reckless challenge.

It has been reported that the French football team Marseille may bring a personal injury claim against the Premiership footballer who was involved in a tackle which left their striker Hatem Ben Arfa with a broken leg.

If you have suffered an injury through a negligent or reckless challenge while playing football you may be able to make a personal injury claim.
